28th Annual Evening by the Sea Event Annual auction with “A Taste of Tuscany” theme this year continues to support healthcare services for the community

Hyannis, MA – HopeHealth is excited to announce its 28th Annual Evening by the Sea Auction will take place on Friday, July 24 at the Wianno Club in Osterville. This year’s honorary chair is Dan Wolf, a significant supporter of our community and HopeHealth. This elegant evening includes dinner, a live and silent auction, live music and dancing. HopeHealth supporters from all over Cape Cod and eastern Massachusetts attend the auction every year to support HopeHealth and bid on a variety of exquisite and unique items.

Proceeds from this Evening by the Sea event help pay for specialized healthcare services for those who are seriously ill, including:

- Charity care to hospice patients
- Necessary treatments to ensure quality of life
- Care for children who are seriously ill and/or experiencing loss
- Grief support to all in need
- Support and education to caregivers and their loved ones living with dementia

“This is our premier fundraising gala event,” said David Rehm, president & CEO of HopeHealth. “Now in its 28th year, the auction benefitting HopeHealth supports a wide range of services provided to people dealing with serious illness and loss within our community. With more than 200 silent and almost 20 live auction items, the bidding is going to be beyond exciting. We thank everyone who participates—our event sponsors, the individuals and businesses who donate auction items, and members of the community who attend this wonderful event.”

Dan Wolf is a longtime supporter of the greater Cape Cod community and of its health and its well-being. His involvement and enthusiasm for helping the people in our area is exemplary and this includes his support of HopeHealth and Hope Hospice. As an entrepreneur and pilot, in 1989 he founded the Cape Cod-based airline Cape Air, which originally flew between Provincetown and Boston and has since expanded nationally and internationally.

“HopeHealth is excited to honor Dan Wolf,” said Rehm. “He exemplifies a truly genuine spirit of giving and community engagement. His generosity touches all aspects of life. Dan serves on a number of boards in the community and under his leadership, Cape Air has received recognition for being one of the most philanthropic companies in southeastern Massachusetts.”

Some of this year's auction items include:

- Seven night Tuscan Villa vacation for four
- Live painting by sports art illustrator and artist, Justyn Farrano, who is considered one of the premier sports and entertainment artists in the world today
- Chef-prepared dinner in your home for eight with wine pairing and a sommelier
- Red Sox tickets with transportation
- Original artwork by some of the Cape's top artists, including Bill Davis and Karol Wyckoff
- Half-day captained boat ride from one of several Cape Cod locations
- Children's fire truck ride to or from school in the Centerville-Osterville-Marstons Mills Fire District – with a dreamily delicious ice cream sundae party for 50
- Exquisite Lexington six piece indoor/outdoor patio set

The generosity of Independence Park, Inc. as this year's premier sponsor, helps HopeHealth provide extraordinary care to patients and families in the community.
